

NEW NIKOLA TESLA BOOK AUTHOR EXPLORES PREVIOUSLY UNEXPLORED DETAILS ABOUT THE INVENTOR IN DRAMATIZATION USING ORIGINAL QUOTES FROM 100-YEAR-OLD MAGAZINE INTERVIEWS.

Ellis Oswald announces his tour of Serbia to follow his initial success of being interviewed by AAP FactCheck, his new position as Vice President of Tesla Science Foundation, and his mission to bring the new book into schools worldwide at no cost to educators or students.

New York, NY. Sept 1, 2022. — As the legacy of Nikola Tesla has now gradually been restored in USA, most Americans still do not know his name, and for those who are very familiar with his accomplishments there are still mysteries and new details to explore and uncover.

- Tesla's Words by Ellis Oswald uses direct quotes from the inventor in 100-year-old American magazine interviews to highlight the inventor's experience of often seeing things that were not actually there.

- Tesla's Words is a unique and genre-bending experience presented as a drama, but heavily reinforced with lesser known, but easily verifiable direct quotes from Nikola Tesla.

- This is the author's debut work. Ellis Oswald represents himself as his own publisher and manager. He is based in New York City.

- Oswald will be touring Serbia from September 20-28 of 2022 to present a speech called "Nikola Tesla: Decades of Wisdom from His Interviews and Articles in American Media." He will be signing copies of Tesla's Words, and promoting his mission to give the book to schools for free around the globe.

A new and relatively unknown artist has been making a stir around the globe. Tesla's Words by Ellis Oswald has been praised by the ability to entertain everyone from teenage children to PhD holders in the sciences, and both people who intimately know about Nikola Tesla as well as those who have never heard his name:

"I have read a number of books and much besides on Nikola Tesla and I thought that I knew the man and his work very well. Nothing that I had read however, had quite brought the spirit, the soul, the mind, and the man himself as this little book."

—Dr. Vujo Knezevic, Neurosurgeon and member of the Tesla Forum of Western Australia

When asked what inspired him to write this book, the author stated:

“I studied drama at university because I was mesmerized by the stories of Shakespeare and other artists at an early age. When I stumbled across many of the quotes in these 100-year-old magazine interviews, it felt like I had lost my sanity, because I purchased every book I could find on the subject written in the English language and easily available in the United States, and it was as if no one had ever seen these quotes because there was no mention of it in other biographies or documentary films. So, I felt I had both a duty and that I was uniquely qualified to create this work. I am not a scientist or a historian, but my work as a dramatist can inspire the common person. My book can give a point in the right direction for the next generation of psychologist, engineers, and historians to explore and fill in the details of what I am showing to the world. Society is also much more prepared to have conversations about people with neurodiverse experiences and cast them in a positive light, as opposed to 10 or 20 years ago. This is what inspired me to create, but the book is about much more than this, and it is about his genius work.”
